

Editorial Issue Thirty-Nine - Continuity and Renewal

This thirty-ninth issue marks the University of Manouba's ongoing commitment to sharing the developments shaping our institution. Since January 2020, this newsletter has been essential in documenting our achievements and strengthening community connections. The delay in publishing this issue reflects the substantial workload managed by Prof. Hajer Bellalouna and Prof. Joughaina Gherib, to whom we extend our sincere gratitude.

The 2024-2025 academic year began alongside the inauguration of the new 2024-2027 governance mandate, following an extensive electoral process. New deans and faculty representatives assumed their roles, some for the first time, taking on the responsibilities of managing their schools. To support them, several meetings were organized to provide essential tools for effective governance, aligned with regulatory guidelines. These meetings facilitated the organization of pedagogical models, schedules, and resource management to ensure a smooth start to the school year.

For students, we implemented practical solutions, particularly for third-year students at the Manouba School of Engineering (MSE). Through efficient use of our facilities, the premises of the Institut Supérieur de Documentation (ISD) have been temporarily allocated to accommodate them, providing an optimal environment for their training.

Orientation weeks for new students were successful, as was the transfer competition, which allowed many young people to join our most sought-after programs. We commend the efforts of all our institutions in meeting students' logistical needs—accommodation, meals, transportation, and healthcare.

Despite these advances, daily administrative demands have delayed the launch of some strategic actions. Nonetheless, several international project activities—project meetings, summer schools, and workshops—have been organized. We have also started to revive several paused initiatives, including partnerships with local authorities, the governorate of Manouba, and the regional directorate of equipment. These foundational projects are vital for the University's development.

Since August 1, the momentum set in motion points toward promising progress for the upcoming steps. Our goal is to strengthen a committed, dynamic public university aligned with society's expectations, relying on the involvement of all stakeholders to achieve these objectives.

Prof. Ameer CHERIF

Personalities of the month

The University of Manouba Grateful to its staff

The SCHOOLING Office plays a vital role in the effective functioning of any university, and at the University of Manouba, it is masterfully managed by two key figures: Mrs. Raoudha Dorai, Head of Office, and Mrs. Mariem Bejaoui, administrator. Despite the considerable demands of their roles, they consistently rise to the challenges with professionalism, rigor, dedication, and a positive spirit.

Their responsibilities are numerous and significant, including the management of student administrative files, organizing the start of the academic year, actively participating in orientation committees, overseeing student elections across various departments, and supervising competitions and promotions within the university. Each task is executed with complete expertise, meticulous attention, selflessness, and unwavering commitment.

We extend our deep appreciation and sincere gratitude to Mrs. Raoudha Dorai and Mrs. Mariem Bejaoui for their invaluable contributions to the University of Manouba. Their dedication has truly enriched our institution.

Mme Raoudha Dorai

Mme Mariem Bejaoui

Several Maghreb universities, including Hassan II University of Casablanca, Chouaïb Doukkali University (Morocco) and the University of Nouakchott (Mauritania), participated in the meeting with perspectives of strengthening the influence of PEEs in North Africa.

Just published

The Arab Society in the Arabian Peninsula Before Islam and in its Beginnings

Title of a new book which has just been published in August 2024, written in Arabic by Professor Nabil Khaldoun Grissa and published by Azmina editions.

It is a fundamental element of a vast and far-reaching project that the author sought to carry out in stages over the long term, with the aim of rediscovering the characteristics of Arab society and culture in the Arabian Peninsula Before Islam and in its Beginnings, thanks to an archeology of the linguistic and cultural memory of the Arabs, while adopting new methodological tools and an updated conceptual and terminological device (or system), based on the latest results of the scientific research in the fields of history, linguistics and anthropology.

In this work, the author specifically poses the problem of the nature of Arab society through the network of classifications available in the studies of historians, sociologists and anthropologists of human societies in general and of Arab (and Islamic) society in particular.

These classifications are theoretical categories forged in the form of opposing dualities that may seem convincing or sufficient, but the new approach allows researchers and readers to open promising horizons for methodological criticism and cognitive reconstruction, and then to propose innovative results.
